The Second of the Ashland Murderers Swung Off.

He Meets Death Culmly, Proclaiming His Innocence to the last-Every Effort to Extort a Confession From Him Fails - A full and Accurate History of the Horrible Crime.

GRAYSON, Ky, Oct. 12.—Craft' was uses hung at 12:41 o'clock, dwing in twelve minutes. He rested well last uight, appeared firm this mouning, and persisted in saying he was innocent. The gallows was located on the northern part of the town, at the foot of a hill, inclosed by a fence twelve feet high. The inclosure is thirty-two feet square. The gallows was of primitive style, with six foot drop and of primitive style, with six foot drop and a trap in the center. The structure was eight foot square. He retired at 12 o'clock last night and arese at 6 this morning. An immense erowd witnessed the proceedings from the hill above the gallows until the trap was sprung, when he was then visible only to those in the enclosure. He proclaimed his innocence on the scaf-

HISTORY OF THE CHIME.

Nearly every citizen of Kentucky and match. We then left the house."

On Ellis' confession Neal and Craft were speedily arrested. The excited pop-Ohio will remember the horrid crime perpetrated in Ashland, Ky., on the Unio river, on December 24th, 1881, by which a boy and two young girls were brutally murdered. The boy was Roboic Chibbons, and the girls Fannie Gibbons, his sister, and Lamas Carrico (Thomas). The three had been killed by having their brains beaten out, the girls having been outraged. To cover up the crime the bodies had been saturated with coal oil and the house fired. Full particulars of the crimprinted in the Lexington, Ky., train-Transcript, indicate it to be one of the most atrocious crimes known in history. Robbie and Famile Giboons were the children of J. W. Gibbons, an old mean or Ashhand, who, from domestic intellectes. had long been absent from his home, doo bie was a cripple of seventeen years, non-Famile a well developed and handsome girl of fourteen. Emma Carrico, and other victim, was the handsome litteen year-old daughter of a neighbor, her moun er having married a man named Thomas. On the evening of the marder Mrs. U.D. bons, before going on a Christmas visn or Ohio, had asked the mother of Emma Carrico to allow her child to stay with her children over night. About 6 o'clock in the evening she had gone into the Gibbon's house never again to come out arive. This house was located in the outskirts on Ashland, and was a three-room frame coatage. During the early evening the neighbors, while passing, heard the merry laughter of the three children, who were especially joyous at the approach of the

At about 4 o'clock on Christmas morn ing the Gibbons house was discovered to be on fire. The neighbors, and citizen. hastened to the scene, and finding that the house could not be saved endeavoied in get out some of the contents. The first person who obtained access to the burning building stumbled over a dead body. which on being drawn out was found be the disfigured remains of Emma Car rico. In a few minutes the body m Fannie Gibbons was found on a bed, partially inscovered, and then the body of Hobbie was found on the floor. The larger bodies were laid on the ground, it being seen that they were certainly dead, and search was made for other occupants of the house. No suspicion of foul play had yet been entertained, but a physician arriving examined the bodies and found that the skull of each one had been crushed by a blunt weapon. Subsequent examination showed that the girls bad been ontraged. The annoncement of these facts drove the Ashland people wild. Business was suspended and nothing was thought of, or spoken of in that little city on that day but the awful harron. On the 26th of December the three mardered innocents were buried from the Southern Methodist Ciurch, Ellis Crast, the man hung to-day, being one of the pullbearers of Fannie Ciubons, and an immense concourse of people being in attendance.

Muny theories of the crime were developed, a favorite one being that old man Gibbons had murdered his children and their visitor, it being alleged that he was on had terms with his wife and that he had taken this method of revenge. That the old man should have also perpetrated the outrages was not thought of, and no one Ashland demanded that he should be forthcoming, and if he had been found in that neighborhood he would have been put to death. The detectives, with an eye to the large rewards offered by meetings of citizens, looked wire and inveighed against old man Gibbons, but within a few days he turned up in West Virginia, where he had been all the time, and his alibi was complete. This put the detectives to their wits end, but the reward tempted them and they continued their futile efforts, the criminals in the meantime having had plenty of time to cover time having had plenty of time to cover

On January 2, ten days after the perpetration of the crime, George Ellis, a inborer, stated that he in company with Ellis Craft and William Neal were with Ellis Craft and William Neal were the perpetrators of the crime. The first intimation that he gave of the guilty parties was early in the morning of the day named. He walked into a grocery store, purchased a cigas, his it and leaning against the counter remarked, "I think I have a clue to the murder of these children, and if I had witnesses it would be all right, but I am afraid they would turn State's evidence." He then left the store but was soon after taken to e hotel by a United States official, when he told the United States official, when he told the entire story of the hellish deed. He said: "A few evenings prior to Denember 24th I met Craft who stated that he was going to see Funnie Gibbons Christmas eve night, and take her some black candy, and that and take her some black candy, and that he was going to have intercourse with her and he wanted me to go along. About midnight of the fatal night we all started, Craft, Neal and myself, and when we reached the house, Craft raised the front reached the house, Craft raised the front window with an old axe and stepped in first, Neal followed, and I stayed behind on the porch, but afterwards went in Bolibie was the first aroused and started to get up, when Craft then went to the bed where the two girls were absening and began to take improper liberties with them. Robbie said "you had better stay away from there," when Craft hit him with the axe. He fell back on the lounge, then plunged forward and fell fully six feet from the bed, under the stairs where his body was found. The girls screamed, when Craft jumped on the bed when they both said, "Ellis Craft what are you here for." Emma also started to jump from the bed when Neal choked her and pulled her ento the floor. She fought him and I held her while he outraged her. Neal them starck her on ontraged her. Neal them struck her on the head with the big end of the crowbar and she instantly died, there throwing np her hands. Ellis Craft had some trouble also with Fannie Gibbons, and called on me to come and help him. He then outraged her and then killed has. Neal proposed killing the girls, and after they were dead I took some cond oil, poured it over the bodies and set fire to them with a over the bodies and set fire to them with a nlace were determined to hang all three. The prisoners were placed in Catlettaburg jail, but before their examining trial was concluded a mob assembled, and they were put en board an Obio river steamboat, which headed down the river. The mob took another stemmer and an exciting chase took place, but the prisoners were landed in Mayswille and afterwards placed in the Lexington jail for safe keeping. The Legislature being in session a special statute was emicted, anthorizing a special term of the Bord County Circuit Court to try the prisoners. By order of Gov. Blackburn, Major John R. Alleu, commanding three companies Kentucay State militia, escorted the prisoners to Catlettsburg, and the trial of Noal began Laminary lith. January 16th. After some dalay a jury was obtained for the trial, which lasted eight days, and the jury, being out eight-een minutes, returned a verdict of guilty, fixing the death penalty. Oraft's trial immediately followed, lasting ten days, upon mediately followed, lasting ten days, upon the same testimony as that on which Neal was convicted. The jury was twenty minntes making a verdict, which was the same as that of Neal, and they were sentenced to be hanged on Friday, April 14, 1882. On being sentenced they both delivered short speeches declaring their innocence, and from that day to this they have vehomently asserted their innocence. George Ellis's trial was postnoned until May, the three prisoners being again placed in the three prisoners being again placed in the Lexington jail. While in the Lexington jail George Ellis recanted his confession, declarations were reduced to writing and sworn to before Judge Kinkaid. On Tuesday, May 30, Ellis was taken to Catlettsburg for trial. He was specifically charged with the murder of Robbie Gibbons, to which he pleaded not gnilty. His trial lasted three days, his sentence being fixed at imprisonment for life at hard labor. This verdict was reached after the jury hail been but twenty-two hours. This sentence was passed on him on Friday, June 3d. That night he was taken from the Catlettsburg jail by n ob of probably thirty determined men, arried to Ashland and hung to the limb of a sycamore tree near the usless of the Gibbons home. It is said that his dying words were a reiteration of the statement that his confession was true.

The cases of Neal and Craft were taken to the Court of Appeals and reversed on some technicality. Their second trial was fixed for the third day of the Boyd Circuit Court, and they were escorted to Cotlettsburg by six companies of the Kentucky militia under command of Col. John R. Allen. They made application for change of venue, which was granted and the case sent to Grayson, Carter county, the prisoners being ordered back to Lexington. As the troops were about unbarking on a steamer to return via embarking on a steamer to return via claysville, a mob of probably a thousand man was assembled, and on failing to get pression of the prisoners, who were safely placed on the boot, the mob captainty of the captaint tured a train on a road running parallel to the river and ran to Arhland, reaching that point before the best. Some of the men on the train ran down to the bank, took possession of a feery heat, and with guns at the pilot's head ordered him to seemed to reflect on the improbability of steer out after the boat having the prison-his baving done this yet the people of ers on board, which he did. When the ferry bont was in range a few shots were fired at the militia, who returned the fire, and several people were killed on the river banks in Ashland.

The next trial being set for the February term in Grayson, the prisoners were guarded there by ten companies of militis and three pieces of artillery. Craft's case was tried, the jury returning a verdict or Friday morning, February 23d, after being out twenty-nine minutes. The verdict was a sentence to death, and the index ing out twenty-nine rainutes. The verdict was a sentence to death, and the judge fixed the day of execution for May 5th. Craft again made a speech declaring his innocence. During this speech Mrs. Gibbons, mother of the 'two murdered children, fainted. The Court of Appeals confirmed the judgment of the sentencing court, but Governor Blackburn failed to fix the day of execution, as required by law, and a long postponement occurred. On the accession of Governor Knott to the executive chair, he took an early opportunity of fixing the day of execution. The friends of Craft were untiring in their efforts to save his life. Claimtheir efforts to save his life. Claiming that they had testimony that would acquit which they would produce at Neal's trial in February, they urged a respite of Craft until after this trial. On Tuesday the Governor announced that he would decline to interfere with the execution of the laws. tion of the laws.

These cases have been the most remarkable in the history of Kentucky. The enormity of the crime; the confessions of Ellis, which he knew would cause his death; the attempt of outraged men who have wives and daughters to protect to lynch the criminals; these attempts being hattled by the military resulting in the death of a number of people: the cost to death of a number of people; the cost to the State of probably $100,000; the death of several soldiers caused by exposure in camp while guarding these prisoners; the gleeful humor of the prisoners under all circumstances, and a thousand other incidents of peculiar character go to make this the canse celebre of the age.

A Great Reception Tendered Him by the New York Bar.

New York, Oct. 12.—The reception tendered by the State Bar Association to Lord Coleridge at the Academy of Music last evening was the occasion for the gathering of the largest number of legal Inminaries ever, perhaps, seen together in this city. The reception was announced to commence at $200, and by that time nearly every seat in the spacious building was occupied by elegantly dressed ladies and their excepts. Chief Justice William C. Ruger presided, assisted by Hon. John Jay and Algernon S. Sullivan. Among those present who were honored by seats those present who were honored by seats on the platform were Hen. Noah Davis, Wm. M. Evarts, Sir James Haman, Jüdge Blatchford, Hon. Berrjamin H. Bristow, pew and about fifty other distinguished gentlemen. After addresses of welcome by Chief Justice Ruger and Hon. Wm. M. Everts, Lord Coleridge responded thanking those present for the raiward S. Pierrepont, Channey M. Degrand and brilliant reception they had been pleased to give kim, and said: "I have lelt ever since I set foot in this great continent, and, wherever I have spoken, that it would have been far better if I had stayed away and left it for younger and abler men to fulfill the duties to which, in all honor, I assure you I feel myself totally inadequate. You know that often-time u tone of self depreciation is but a subtle means of personal vanity, but I want you to distinctly understand that I have not, and can not have, any pretense whatever to answer for my country's in-telligence, her scholarship, her, oratory, and her law. They know this in Eng-land and they are not slow of reminding me in case I should forget myself. I am a radical, and, although I support Mr. Gladstone, I agree with Mr. John Bright most heartily. Lord Coleridge concluded his remarks by giving a brief account of his visit to the different parts of the country. The reception terminated with a grand supper.

A Brother of Jesse and Frank James Commits a Deliberate Murder in Kansas City-Shooting a Hackman Who Asked for His Fare-A Damu' ing Letter From Frank James Found on the Prisoner's Person.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 12.—John Samuels, a half-brother of Frank James, the notorions Missouri outlaw, shot and the notorions Missouri outlaw, shot and almost killed Znter Daniels, a hackman, at midnight. Samuels had come ever from his mother's farm in Clay county, near Kearney. He had been knocking about town all day and in the evening hired a hack. He visited a number of places during the night, framently ordering the driver to whip up. frequently ordering the driver to whip up his team and go faster. When the horses became jaded, and the hackman had mercy on them and halted, Samuels jumped out and demanded that he go ahead. The driver said he would when Samuels paid his bill. At this Samuels darted around the corner like a scared wolf. The hackman pursued him yelling furiously. He overtook the fugitive, and the two had some words, when Samuels whipped out a Colt's navy pistol and fired, the ball taking effect in the hackman's left breast. Several perrons say that Samuels fired. Several perrons say that Samuels fired more than one shot. He was afterward arrested and taken to the police station, where he was searched, and among other things found in his possession was a letter written by Frank James from Gallatin, where he is still in jail. This letter reads:

" Bear Brother John—Things are going all right; I will soon be out of this trouble, and when I am you will soon hear of me again in the saddle.

Gus and the Electric Light.

General Hickenlooper, President of the Cincinnati Gas Company, said to a reporter of the Evening Post: "Wherever the electric light has been introduced the consumption of gas has immediately increased. We have studied the subject very carefully, and we have found that the increased gas consumption in a square whose street is lighted by an electric light is fourteen per cent. The electric arc lamp has been a public rducator, teaching the people how desirable plenty of light is, and the result of that colncation is that, instead of burning as little gas as would permit them to see at all, they light every burner, turn the light up as high as it will go without 'blowing,' and thus get a good illumination. The gas companies have no quarrel with the electric light. I have favored the introduction of the electric light in this city. In fact, we could well afford to dispense with the revenue from lighting the streets of the city if the electric light people would light them by electricity. We would make enough more on increased interior illumination. I am personally in favor of the uniform and steady reduction in the price of gas, as fast as is consistent with a proper rate of revenue from the capital invested in the business. I think that is the desire also of the stockholders of this company. Business men will, I think, concede that ten per cent is a fair income upon capital invested in a basiness like that of a gas company. This rompany pays ten per cent; and it will be the policy of the company to divide all the profits above that amount with the consumers, in the form of a reduction in the price of gas. Every reduction will naturally increase the consumption without increasing the administrative expenses or the capital in the plant; hence profits will increase and the price of gas can then be again reduced. This mutual operation will rontinue till gas will be delivered to the consumer at a price which would uppear ridiculously low as compared with prices now pre-

Eczema, Biotches, Ringworm, Tumors, Carbuncles, Boils, sad Eruptions of the Skin, are the direct result of an impure state of the blood.

To care these diseases the blood must be purified, and restored to a healthy and natural condition. Aven's Sarsaparilla has for over forty years licen recognized by eminent medical anthorities as the most powerful blood purifier in existence. It frees the system from all foul huaiors, enriches and strengthens the blood, removes ail traces of mercurial treatment, and proves ltself a complete master of all scrofulous diseases.

"Some months ago I was troubled with scrofulous sores (ulcers) on my legs. The limbs were ladly swollen and inflamed, and the sores discharged large quantities of offensive matter. Every remedy I tried failed, until I used Ayen's Sansarannala, of which i have now taken three bottles, with the result that the sores are healed, and my general health greatly improved. I feel very grateful for the good your medicine has done me. Yours respectfully, Mrs. Ann O'Brian."

148 Sullivan St., New York, June 24, 1882.

All persons interested are invited to call on Mrs. O'Brian; also upon the Rev. Z. P. Wilds of 78 East 54th Street, New York City, who will take pleasure in testifying to the wonderful efficacy of Ayer's Sarsaparila, not only in the cure of this lady, but in his own case and many others within his knowledge.

The well-known writer on the Boston Herald, B. W. Ball, of Rochester, N.H., writes, June 7, 1882: "Having suffered severely for some years with Eczema, and having falled to flad retief from other remedies, I have made use, during the pust three months, of Ayer's Sahsarahlela, which has effected a complete cure. I consider it a magnificent remedy tor all blood diseases."

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

stimulates and regulates the action of the digestive and assimilative organs, renews and strengthens the vital forces, and speedly cures Rhenmatism, Neuralgia, Rhenmatic Gont, Catarrh, General Dehillty, and all diseases arising from an impoverished or corrupted comittion of the blood, and a weakened vitality. It is incomparably the chespest blood medicine, on account of its concentrated strength, and great power over disease.
